Ruth's Home Run With Bases Full Features Opening Tilt

Meusel Is Big Gun, With a Homer, a Triple, Two Doubles and Two Singles in Twin Bill; Bush Gets Fine Support and Shawkey Is Very Effective

By John Kieran

The rejuvenated Yankees took two full strides forward in their chase after the flying St. Louis Browns, when they took a double-header from the Indians at the Polo Grounds yesterday, while the Mound City sluggers were idle in Boston. Tris Speaker and his Redskins were flourishing the tomahawks and uttering their war cries in the early innings of both contests, but the hammer blows of the Huggins' attack had them skulking to their teepees when the real battle began. The scores were 10 to 3 and 11 to 3.

Furthermore, Master G. time since he has joined the metropolitan forces that the Behemoth of Bust has delivered a four-base blow with all sacks populated. He accomplished the feat four times while a despondent member of the Red Sox outfit, and his last hit of that kind was so terrific that it knocked a major league manager out of his job. It was in a squabble between the Red Sox and Cleveland, and the late Jim Dunn was so disgruntled over the strategy of Lee Fohl on this play that he accepted Fohl's resignation by request and handed the job to Tris Speaker.

The Babe was not the only home run hitter of the day. His former partner in crime, long Bob Meusel, lined one into the left-field bleachers in the seventh inning of the second game, and hardly had the cheering died down before Fred Hoffmann up and duplicated the desperate deed. Freddie had on his batting clothes as well as shinguards and chest protector in this festivity. He got two singles, a double and a homer in four times up. Meusel kept, up a merry cannonading against the barriers throughout the afternoon. In mine tries against the opposition hurling he drove out two singles, two doubles, a triple and a homer, which is considered a fair day's work even in the Meusel family.

"Bullet Joe" Bush chucked his speed ball at the Indians throughout the whole of the first pastime, and the enemy was not a bit slow about hitting them right back past the hurler. The Tribe dented his delivery to the whistling time of cleven bingles, but only one of them was an extra base hit, and sparkling support held the total damage to three runs. However, the brutal assault by the invaders so enraged Bullet Joe that he went on a batting rampage himself with two singles and a rip-roaring triple to the farthest confines of the Fabian arena. "Duster" Mails started the first game for the Indians, but after the hectic third inning, during which he was farred from his topmast to the undersidered from his topmast to the decided that it would be a shanne to kill a blind man, so they let Ollic off with a volley of sarcasm.

The scores:

Frank Baker and family viewed the win bill from the grandstand. The Trape Mauler had his foot cut up again by the surgeons, as it had become infected. He expects to be around some time next week.

Fred Hofmann must have thought twin the fiving in his foot cut up again by the surgeons, as it had become infected. H

Meusel tripled right after the Babe and scored on a sacrifice fly by Pipp. Then the Duster delivered his oration and took a nice cool shower.

Cleveland stole a one-run lead in the first inning on hits by Jamieson and Stophenson, and they made another tally in the third when Speaker and Sewell walked and McInnis singled to center. This lead looked like 30 cents Mexican after the Yanks had pounded Mails in their half of the third. Four hits, an error and a wounded batsman gave the Hugmen five tallies, which was more than enough to win the game right there. However, the Yanks picked up another in the fourth on hits by Witt and Meusel and a successful double steal by the same pair.

The Indians threatened trouble in the seventh, when O'Neill singled Jamies on double steal by the same pair.

The Indians threatened trouble in the seventh, when O'Neill singled, Jamieson doubled and Wamby walked, filling the bases with one out and Speaker at bat. Tris poked a short single to center, scoring O'Neill, but further trouble was squelched when Bush took Stephenson's tap and nailed Jamieson at the plate, and Ward tossed out Sewell. A triple by Joe Bush a double by Aaron Ward, another by Bob Meusel, a sacrifice fly by McNally and free transportation to Ruth and Pipp resulted in four runs for the Yanks in the eighth inning at the expense of Sergeant Jim Bagby.

While this retail hitting business was being conducted on a minor scale the Yankee sluggere were treating the spectators to the sight of footsore and leg-weary Indians hitting the trail after drives to all corners of the field. Fourteen hits and eleven runs was the total in eight turns at bat. This included two doubles, two triples and two homers. A two-bagger by Hofmann, a scratch hit by Witt and a single by Mike McNally gave the Yanks two runs and the lead in the third inning. Meusel's single, Ward's triple and a sacrifice fly by Scott yielded two more tallies in the fourth.

Pipp, Ward, Hofmann and Shawkey singled in the sixth. Whitey Witt drove out a sacrifice fly and Mike McNally bounced a triple off the right-field wall. This was plenty for young Master Lindsey, and Joe Schaute, formerly of Juniata College, was invited to display his left-handed wares against the Yanks. The assault on Lindsey had yielded five hits and four runs. A double by Ward and homers by Meusel and Hofmann in the eighth scored three more for the Yanks and gave the aforementioned Schaute a taste of high life in the big leagues. On Keeping Cool

"Heat, according to leading psychologists, is largely a matter of imagination. People think too much of the thermometer, in place of focussing their atttention on cooling subjects."-News Item.

The genial thermometer was poised at 99, But when I started wilting like a blossom on the vine I thought about imagining a blizzard on the blow, Where I was in the Arctic, with eleven feet of snow. I should have started freezing as I heard the north wind roar, But the rippling perspiration was as steady as before.

The sun stalked like a tyrant with a flaming sword of heat, But when I felt it blistering my head and back and feet, I thought, "It's only mental; I am now at Baffin's Bay, The ice is forty inches thick along the right of way. What, ho! it's forty-eight below, a snowstorm sweeps the land"-And yet my wilting collar didn't seem to understand.

I've sent myself to Greenland's mounts and Iceland, with its snows. I've thought about the polar bears and frozen Eskimos. I've said, "I'm driving huskies now, pot-hunting for the pole, With hands frostbitten by the gales and zero in my soul. I've thought of blizzards, ice and hail, I've thought of sleet and snows, But still along my blistered neck the perspiration flows.

Concerning Form

"What does form amount to if you get there?" inquires a correspondent. "Results are all that count."

Form, in its last turn-over, is the easiest way to get the correct results. It is the elimination of waste, of unnecessary effort. It is the short cut to the right way.

Take the case of Walter Johnson, a past master of pitching form. Johnson began his major league career sixteen seasons back. His main of the season when the Cardinals piled up a total score of 14 to 2. Thirasset was blinding speed. "Great while he's got it," was a general verdict, "but how long can he last?"

The answer is that in his sixteenth campaign he is still presenting shut-outs to the bewildered enemy.

Johnson, in pitching, has less waste motion than any other one person we ever saw. His speed comes without any show of effort. There Fractured Left Arm are no extra jerks and twists hooked to his stuff.

The first comment that a noted English boxing expert made about Dempsey was this: "He does everything without any show of effort." Dempsey isn't wearing himself out with waste motion. He knows

Hans Wagner was no model of grace. But for all that he made most his chances look easy. Sisler is one of the casiest playing stars upon the field. Here and gives such support to the fractured one that it will mend perfectly and be as strong as ever."

If Benny Leonard has been shooting his best for the last two years he can hardly be rated in the same territory with Frank Erne, Joe Gans and Kid Lavigne. Many of his friends have suggested that he wasn't working his heart out in certain fights after taking the lead. Perhaps no, and perhaps yes. But no man can wear two crowns—the crown of weight champion, outpointed Pancho Villa at the Oakland A. A. in Jersey City last night. Genero lead in nearly every round and made an impressive showing before the largest crowd that has yet graced the local arena. It was a twelve-round bout.

Nehf Holds Old Sway Over Pittsburgh and Yields but 5 Hits, of Which Carey Gets 3, Including Triple and Homer; Babe Adams Easy for Giants

PITTSBURG, July 6 .- The Giants opened their second invasion of the West quite auspiciously this afternoon, taking the opener of a fivegame series with the Pirates, 6 to 3. If it hadn't been for old Max Carey the Giants' one and only southpaw, A. Nehf, Esq., would have been credited with pitching a superlative game. But Carey cared nothing for Nehf's desire to achieve a two-hit game, and swung his mess covered old oaken bat with vicious effect.

In four times up Carey nicked Nehf for three hits, the same being a home run over the left garden wall, a triple to right field and a double to center. Carey showed no partiality and favcred every distant section of Barney Dreyfuss's arena with a long distant swat.
